PIERRE – The South Dakota Department of Transportation is in the process of developing the newest four-year Statewide Transportation Improvement Program (STIP).

The STIP is a list of transportation projects developed through a coordinated effort involving many state, federal and local entities that identify highway and intermodal improvements to preserve, renovate and enhance South Dakota's transportation system.

The department encourages participation and comments from citizens throughout the development process.

Department staff will be reviewing the status of existing projects and identifying potential new projects to add to the STIP this spring.

Public meetings will be held at various locations across the state in July where attendees can get more information and provide input in person.

The department welcomes comments from the public year-round on potential projects, but is asking for input no later than April 15, to ensure all comments are considered during the development of the 2015-2018 STIP.

The current 2014-2017 STIP can be viewed at www.sddot.com by clicking the link on the left side of the page. Users can then view the entire approved STIP document and an interactive map of projects, or select specific counties from a dropdown drummers, and Tiospaye competitions, including Miss, Junior Miss and Little Miss USD Tiospaye.

Should you have any questions, contact Dave Voeltz, STIP coordinator, at (605) 773-3590 or by e-mail at dave.voeltz@state.sd.us.

Tiospaye U. is the USD Native American Student Organization that strives to encourage native and nonnative students to get involved in university activities, supports students in their academic pursuits, and promotes Native American diversity on the Vermillion campus.

"Things have been going incredibly well," he said, as the dancers and drummer took a short break following the first hour of activity on Saturday. "We got a good start this morning, and it looks like the turnout is really good for this afternoon.

"I'm excited for the rest of this weekend," he said. "It's probably going to be one of the best years we've had yet."

The USD Wacipi was held in conjunction with the 17th annual Building Bridges Conference, which was held at the Muenster University Center March 28. The Wacipi was open to anyone who wished to attend. Those not familiar with the customs of a powwow soon noticed different styles of dance taking place on the floor of the DakotaDome. The men's traditional dance symbolizes a battle or the story of a hunt. The men's grass dance is said to have come from the past, when dancers were sent in first to stomp down long grass to make a clearing for the other dancers during a powwow. Men's fancy dancing became a traditional part of Wacipis in the late 1900s. Boys and young men, who wear brilliantly colored bustles and dance regalia, prefer this style. The women's traditional dance is simple in appearance, but plays a very important symbolic role. The dancers move their feet to the beat of the drum to represent the heartbeat of mother earth, to heal the world. Many of the women and young girls wore jingle dresses. The small jingles that adorn their clothing, made of twisted tin, represent waves of water and thunder as they performed what is known as a healing dance. It was impossible to not tice the female dan who performed in the style commonly referred to as fancy. These dancers wore elaborately beaded dance regalia, covered by long, decorated, fringed shawls. These Wacipi participants made efforts to resemble butterflies, spreading out their shawl-covered arms as they spun in tiny circles on the DakotaDome floor.

"We've had a lot of support from the university, from the administration, so things are looking really good for this weekend," Pickner said.

The annual event at USD attracts participants and visitors from across South Dakota and much of the Midwest. People were still arriving and getting registered early Saturday afternoon, so Pickner hadn't yet gotten an accurate count on the number of people at the DakotaDome.

"Once we get our registration all set up, we'll be able to better tell just how far people have traveled to be part of this," he said. "In the past, we've had people from all over the country, from as far as California and New York. I think holding it in conjunction with the Native American gathering really helps to bring people in.'

Visitors got a good view of all the activity from the DakotaDome's seating as participants danced in the center of the building's floor. Along the track surrounding the dance area booths manned by several vendors.

The space that we have available really helps to create an environment that's open," Pickner said. "It (the DakotaDome) is just a very good place for us.

Pickner and members of the Tiospaye Student Council were kept busy right from the start of Saturday's activities. 'There's a lot of different aspects to a powwow or Wacipi," he said. "It is a social gathering, but there are a lot of other facets that bring out the culture. There is a lot of history behind many of the dances.'
