

Meet Andrew Homan

By David Lias
david.lias@plaintalk.net

Andrew Homan has barely had a chance to get to know his players, and, in turn, his players are just starting to get to know him.

This time of getting acquainted while preparing for the 2013 Vermillion Tanager football season is an experience that Andrew successfully sought, and is greatly enjoying.

Last spring, shortly after Gary Culver decided to end his 36-year career as the Vermillion High School head football coach, Andrew saw the job advertised in a local newspaper.

“I saw that they had the head football (coaching position) open, and I know what kind of tradition they have here in Vermillion ... there are people I know here who told me how well the program was and the rich tradition,” Andrew said, “so I thought I might as well apply and see what happens.”

Andrew played high school football at Battle Creek–Ida Grove High School in Ida Grove, IA. He played college football for the University of South Dakota and for Morningside College, until injuries forced him to stop playing. While a competitor, he played at various positions, including full back, tight end and linebacker.

Andrew has a bachelor’s degree in physical education and sports science from Morningside, and will teach physical education and social science courses in the Vermillion School District. He brings nine years of coaching and strength conditioning experience to his new coaching job.

He has served as head football coach at Sloan, IA, and as an assistant coach at Lawton-Bronson School District in Lawton, IA.

While at Sloan, “I got some experience and learned some things that I want to do, and don’t want to do, and coaching at Lawton-Bronson with Coach (Chad) Moseman, who is a heck of a head coach, really taught me a lot of things that I can take with me now and continue on as we progress,” Andrew said.

The Tanager team held its first “pre-regular” practice on Aug. 15 at the outdoor field near VHS.

“I’ve had a lot of these kids for two weeks – they’ve been lifting and running, and they’ve been getting after it pretty well; we’ve had great attendance,” he said.

Andrew said his coaching philosophy stresses five pillars: Family, Character, Pride, Purpose and Attitude.

“We feel that with those five things, if we can grow on those every week, and keep adding on to those, I think we’re going to lay a good foundation this season,” he said. “We’ll see how well the season goes and build on from there and for years to come.”
