finally done with homework - yeah right, like that ever happens. "I was) scared about being on my own and wondering what tomorrow will be like. (I was) excited to celebrate with the friends that became like family over the past 4 years and hoping that this night of celebration would never end." She also promised the students that simply graduating itself doesn't guarantee success, but gave those newest USD alumni some thoughtful pointers. Then she did add that graduating from USD, where Peters met her husband, was a key step in her life. I attribute my biggest successes in life to this University," Peters said. "My life didn't really start until I began my college career here at USD." - Alan Dale contributed to this report
