took him into radio sales. "I wasn't doing the on-air stuff and I was doing OK with the sales stuff, I was actually good at it," Thayer said. "But I didn't like it as much. I kind of got to that point where I was starting to wonder if this was the right career for me. For some reason I stayed with, got another opportunity, and it ultimately led me to here."

Here includes bringing a fun vibe to the USD women's basketball program. "I can tell you that we love John travelling with us and he adds a lot of flavor to the bus trips, he's a lot of fun," USD women's basketball coach Amy Williams said. "He does a great job with what he does and is a fun person to be around."

Williams herself never gets to listen to the broadcasts for obvious reasons, but she does have a unique situation when it comes to getting full scale reports of the play-by-play performance by Thayer.

"My dad listens to every broadcast and watches every game and every week he reminds me how 'you don't know how lucky you are to have John Thayer doing your games,'" Williams said. "He's listened to a lot of different radio broadcasts. He's pretty clear that John does an excellent job."

Thayer says that being a part of the USD sports nation has been a good one.

"It's a great opportunity and I am a person who is always looking for ways to get involved and do more things," Thayer said. "I thought it was a good opportunity for where my goals are and I was fortunate enough to get the job."

"Since I have been here, the football, the basketball and everything else you can see over the last three years the teams are improving and the athletic department is getting better. It's a Division I college, who doesn't want to be around that?"

Van Goor met Thayer right before the younger professional was about to fill his soon-to-be vacated sports director shoes.

"The first time I met John was through the interview process and he had a solid background," Van Goor said.
