A squirrel of a tale

When Steve and Dud got up to go get a paper, it left just Doc and Bert sitting at the philosophy counter of the Mule Barn truck stop. Bert turned his head and smirked a little, being careful not to let Doc see him. Doc also didn't see Dud outside, punching in a number on his cell phone while Steve stood by as a cheerleader.

"Doc," said Loretta, filling the coffee cups, "phone call for you, Hon."

"Here? Okay..." Doc walked over to the cash register and picked up the phone.

"This here Doc?" said the caller. "The Doc what lost his squirrel?"

"Uh ..." Doc looked around for help. There was none. "Yes. Yes it is."

"Found your dang squirrel here, Doc. That reward thing still good?"

"Well ... yes."

"Five dollars and a quarter, right? Now is that cash or check? I don't take no checks."

Doc is looking all around and looks wilderness-type lost. "Cash I guess."

"Only thing is, Doc. Need to be sure this is your squirrel, right? So can you describe him for me?"

"He's ... gray."

"All gray squirrels are gray, now, ain't that right? How about any distinguishing marks? Tattoos?"

"No tattoos."

"So far so good. Now you said in the ad his name is Chipper. Well, I called him Chipper and the son of a gun bit me."

"He did?"

"What I mean to ask here, Doc, is did you and your squirrel get along? No squirrel problems? He looks like he needs a square meal to me. You feed him good?"

"What?"

"You know ... like Squirrel Chow free choice, or did you put him on a nut ration? I mean, he ate like there was no tomorrow. Dang near ate up the whole five dollars and a quarter reward money in squirrel food."

Steve and Dud walked back into the café, then, with the cell phone still at Dud's ear, and the laughing began.

Slim Randles

"You were right all along, Doc," said Bert. "In winter, everyone can use a good hoax."

Doc bought the coffee.

Brought to you by the soon-to-be-announced syndicated radio program, "Home Country." We thought you should be warned.

The family of Loretta Johnson wish to thank all those who supported her and the family during this time. Thank you to friends and families for your prayers and cards. A special thank you to the staff of Well-Life in Elk Point, Yankton Care Center and the Hospice staff. You all made a difficult time better for us all. A memorial service will be held in the spring. The time and place will be announced.

The Broadcaster advertising department is wonderful at taking our ideas and creating an ad that we like with minimal guidance. They do a great job at reading our minds!

Todd's Electric Service

I have been using the Broadcaster as an integral part of my advertising program because I get results. The business card size ads have generated many calls and netted a large percentage of my clients.
