Elsie Meeks to serve as State Director for Rural Development in South Dakota

The Obama Administration has announced that Elsie Meeks will serve as South Dakota State Director for Rural Development at the USDA.

"Elsie Meeks will be an important advocate on behalf of rural communities throughout the state and help administer the valuable programs and services provided by the USDA that can enhance their economic success," said Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack.

Elsie Meeks is an enrolled member of the Oglala Lakota Tribe, and was recently the CEO/President of First Nations Oweesta Corporation (OWEESTA) a subsidiary of First Nations Development Institute, which provides investment capital, technical assistance and training to help Native communities develop community development financial institutions. Meeks has over 20 years experience working for Native community economic development.

Prior to her leadership and work at OWEESTA, she was active for 15 years in the development and management of The Lakota Fund, a small business and microenterprise development loan fund on the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota. Meeks has served on and chaired numerous boards, including the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights where she was the first Native American to serve on the Commission. Meeks attended Oglala Lakota College for General Studies.

us with some key words about the products or services that they sell."

Users of the new Web site may simply type key words that describe the type of business they are looking for - building contractors, for example - into the site's search engine, and a listing of local businesses that fit that description appears.

"It's going to allow people to find the goods and services in Vermillion that they are looking for in a much easier way than in the past," he said. "Our goal is to be the site that people go to when they want information about goods or services in Vermillion. We want to drive people to these businesses using the Web site, because that's the way people are doing their shopping these days. People are looking for stuff online. They want to be three clicks away from information about merchants."

Users of the Web site may conduct a member search from any of its many pages. "It's just so much easier to use without having to scroll through lists to try to identify different businesses," he said. "As far as benefits to our members, it's giving them a lot more exposure."

The newly-designed Web site also serves as a sales tool for the VCDC.

"This is an extra service we can offer to our members," Howe said. "It will help drive people to their businesses, which is our organization's ultimate goal - to promote local businesses, and this will ultimately help us do that."
