"This year we have right around 100 returns," Alvis said. "Last year we had a huge number of students who had just graduated high school, and that was the bulk of our camp.

"This year is actually the opposite - we have a lot of very young kids. It's always very interesting year to year to see how the demographics of the camp change," he said.

Alvis added that planning for next year's camp already had begun before this year's had finished.

"It's a year-long process," he said. "The bulk of the work is done beginning at the end of May, when applications really, truly start to roll in. The brochures are during the upcoming 2012 budget revision ordinance to be presented in September.

"Hopefully the construction might take place later this year," he said. If it does not, project specifications will allow for it to be completed next year. The city council also approved a motion to reject all bids for a project to construct a parallel taxiway extension and jet fuel system at the airport. While the original estimate for the project was $500,000, the low bid received from Welfl Construction was high by approximately $120,000, Dominguez said. A member provided to the council members attributed the high bids to a change in the specifications required by the Federal Aviation Administration. "The change requires that if asphalt already placed did not pass inspection, the entire asphalt already constructed would have had to be removed and replaced," the memo said.

"Prior to this change to the specifications, only sections that did not pass inspection would have been removed."

The FAA and the state both have agreed to allow the specifications could to be changed back to the previous requirements for the project, Dominguez said.

A new bid opening will take place July 31. In other city council news,

City Manager John Prescott announced an open house for sent out (to schools) in the end of January and the beginning of February, and really, we get applications coming in as soon as they go out.

"After this camp is done, next year's camp starts," he said.

He said he hopes to give each of the students as memorable an experience as possible.

'The kids already have a love of music, obviously, or they wouldn't be here," Alvis said. "But I would love for them to want to go home and spread that love. share that with their friends and family, get their friends who are kind of on the fence about whether they really want to stay in choir or band ... interested in staying involved.

"Music is a huge part of everyone's life, and the more that they can be involved, the more they can create. That's a fantastic thing," he said.

Aug. 8 from 5 to 7 p.m. where residents will be able to view a conceptual design for the new Prentis Park swimming pool.

"It's a little bit like some of the (Department of Transportation) open houses that they have," Prescott said. 'There's not a formal presentation, but we will have the design up in a couple different locations, we'll have people available to point out and explain what different things on the map mean and kind of walk through this."

The open house will take place in the council chambers.

It also was announced Monday that Prentis Park will be the site of the annual National Night Out on Aug. 7 from 5 to 8 p.m.

This will be the eighth year Vermillion has taken part in the program, which aims to assist the Vermillion Police Department and the National Association of Town Watch in promoting neighborhood safety and crime prevention.

Detective Crystal Brady said food will be sold by Hy-Vee, and there will be activities for children such as train rides, games and inflatables, as well as live music.

"It was a great experience last year," said Police Chief Matt Betzen. "I would encourage you all to come this year, if for no other reason than to get a chance to throw some balls and sink the chief of police in the dunk tank."

Brady agreed, adding, "What National Night Out is really all about is getting out to know the people in your neighborhoods, the people in your community, so that you can work together to prevent crime."
