(Newspapers In Education) is a program that provides weekly Plain Talk newspapers to classrooms to be used as teaching materials. Along with special instructional materials, these newspapers are used at all grade levels to reach children and stimulate their minds. In recent years, the use of newspapers in school has more than tripled due to the need for a more current perspective on the events of the world today.

Additional thanks to all the listed businesses that have donated certificates and continue to show their strong support of children's education.
