of library science at the University of South Dakota. Siegrist bequeathed more than $800,000 to the project two weeks before she passed away in 2011.

"The project was estimated to be about $3 million, and with the contribution of Edith Siegrist – which turned out to be more like $1 million – and the contributions of many of you people here today, this is what we were able to accomplish," Powell said. "I applaud all of you for your contributions."

"The successful completion of this magnificent structure is the result of cooperative efforts of many, including the library board, Friends of the Library, the library foundation, staff, volunteers and the City of Vermillion," he said.

In addition to Siegrist others who were singled out for their efforts included Jerry Johnson and the late Roger Kozak, who co-chaired the library board fundraiser that secured the money for furnishings for the project.

The library's community room has been named in Kozak's honor.

Library staff members also were thanked in a statement from the state library director, Daria Bossman, which was read by Jane Healy, electronic services coordinator for the South Dakota State Library.

"Each of you have worked tirelessly, for not just years, but decades serving cheerfully and faithfully in cramped conditions, dreaming, hoping and striving toward this goal of an expanded and remodeled, modern 21st century public library," she read. "This day is for you. Thank you for your faithfulness, your dedication, your vision and your hard work."

A native of Vermillion, Sen. Johnson said he has many memories of visiting the library and checking out books as a child.

"The library is often the place where we start to experience the wider world around us," he said. "Libraries expose us to new ideas, great art and aesthetic locations to teach us about a world different than our own. Those are important experiences, especially for young people, and that is why those early memories are often so strong."

"By dedicating this new addition and renovation, we're helping to ensure that today's children have the opportunity to create the same memories for themselves," he said.

Also in the program was a performance by Gretchen Burbach and the outgoing second-graders from Jolley Elementary School.

MidAmerican Energy contributed to the funding of the open house event, while the cost of catering was defrayed by Hy-Vee and Mister Smith's Café and Catering.

USD School of Law welcomes two new faculty members

University of South Dakota School of Law welcomes two new faculty members, Wendy N. Hess and Thomas E. Simmons, to begin teaching this fall as assistant professors.

"I could not be more pleased with the hiring of Professors Hess and Simmons," stated Dean Thomas Earl Geu. "Each brings unique, but balanced practice and teaching experience that suits their positions."

Hess was a visiting assistant professor at USD Law during the just-completed 2012-2013 academic year. She directed the Fundamental Legal Skills and Legal Writing Program and taught a course on client counseling. She will continue her work in those capacities as a full-time member of the faculty starting in the fall.

Prior to coming to USD, Hess coordinated the Critical Legal Skills program at another law school where she taught academic legal skills, mastering legal skills, interviewing and counseling. Her law practice experience includes directing the Prison Reform Project at the Public Justice Center, a non-profit law office in Baltimore, MD. She also worked on educational access for children in foster care and enforcement of freedom of information laws. She has served as the Francis Murnaghan Appellate Advocacy Fellow where she worked on poverty law and civil rights appellate cases in state and federal courts.

Hess is admitted to the State Bars of Maryland and Washington, D.C. She received a B.A. degree in psychology and in government and politics at the University of Maryland, and a J.D. degree at the University of Denver College of Law, where she was a Chancellor's Scholar.

Simmons was most recently a partner with the Rapid City Law firm of Gunderson, Palmer, Nelson & Ashmore, LLP, where he worked as a trusts and estates lawyer, becoming a partner in 2006.

His fall law courses include trusts and wills and estate and trust administration. His first employment after becoming a member of the South Dakota Bar was that of a judicial law clerk for the Honorable Andrew W. Bogue, senior federal district judge, Western District of South Dakota (1998-2000) in Rapid City. During his clerkship, Simmons was a part-time instructor of constitutional history at the paralegal studies program with National American University, also in Rapid City (1998-1999).

Simmons founded the Elder Law Committee of the South Dakota Bar and serves as its chair. He serves on the Executive Board of the Real Property, Probate and Trust Section of the South Dakota Bar (and was twice elected chair). He is a member of the board of directors of the Alzheimer's Association-South Dakota and the South Dakota Board of Pardons and Paroles. He serves on the Board of Editors of the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys (NAELA) Journal.

His work has included representing individual and corporate fiduciaries; litigation of contested estates and guardianships; sophisticated elder law planning and advocacy; nonprofit and charitable law; business and ranch/farm succession planning; and, asset-protection planning. Prior to his legal career, Simmons was a public school teacher.

Texans and Vermillion Trio at Gayville Saturday

Texas singer-songwriter Danny Santos visits Gayville Hall's monthly musical variety show, "The Hay Country Jamboree," at 8 p.m. on Saturday, June 8, in Gayville.

Show regulars, including the Vermillion trio Good People and banjo virtuoso and funnyman Dan Kilbride, will trade tunes with Santos and his fellow Texan Wes Green, who plays fiddle and mandolin.

A native Texan of Chicano heritage, Santos accompanies himself on guitar while performing "a unique mix of country/folk tinged with bluegrass and blues." He has performed extensively throughout the United States and Europe and first appeared at Gayville Hall a decade ago. He records on the Chicago-based Wind River label and on the Brambus label out of Switzerland. With Green at his side, the singer-songwriter will gravitate toward bluegrass.

Homeboy Kilbride, of Sioux Falls, is no slouch in that genre either, but also delights Gayville audiences with his downhome humor

Good People, featuring Bruce Gray and mother-and-daughter Cindy and Rebecca Gehm, performs old-time American popular songs, folk, gospel, and mountain-type music. The trio debuted three years ago on the Gayville Hall stage and, with three-part vocal harmonies, remains a popular and frequent guest.

Jamborees are two-hours long, including a short intermission midway, and are presented in an alcohol-free, family-friendly setting.

Gayville Hall is at 502 Washington Street in Gayville. Tickets are $12.50 at the door, or $15 for a reserved seat. Call (605) 267-2859.

Young Eagles event at Chan Gurney Airport

A Young Eagles event will be held at the Yankton Airport terminal building on Saturday, June 15, from 9 a.m. to noon. The Yankton Chapter 1029 of the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) is holding the 20th annual event.

The Young Eagles Program of the EAA has the goal of giving 100,000 kids age 8 to 17 a free airplane ride in 2013. The EAA achieved their previous goal of flying 1 million kids by Dec. 17, 2003, which was the 100th anniversary of powered flight first accomplished by the Wright brothers.

The current total is 1.7 million Young Eagles. The YRAA has flown more than 2,500 kids in Young Eagle events at local airports including Yankton, Bloomfield, Gregory, Hartington and Vermillion over the past 20 years.

A parent of guardian must sign a registration form that will be available at the registration desk in the airport terminal. Young Eagles receive a flight certificate, pilot logbook for free Web-based ground school training (ages 13-17 years old), and their name is placed in the world's largest logbook at www.young eagles.org.

Friday will bring about the women's pole vault, which will feature Buell and Grove. Both cleared 13 feet, 5½ inches to make the championship meet.

Championship week has been a familiar experience for Buell, who has made the outdoor championships three times and the indoor championships twice. She ranks first in the nation this season at 14 feet, 7½ inches. She also finished third at the outdoor championships a year ago and sixth at the indoor championships this past March.

It's also becoming a familiar spot for Grove, who will compete in her second outdoor championships. She's tied for the 10th-best mark of the final 24 competitors (14-0) and finished seventh at the championships a year ago.

Huber's take on Buell and Grove: "Bethany and Emily have both been to Eugene before, not only for the NCAA Championships, but for the Olympic Trials also. I think there's a huge advantage for the good experiences they've had in Eugene."

Cody Snyder – Junior - Discus

Cody Snyder finished seventh in the discus at the preliminary round with a school and state record throw of 187-0 to make his first NCAA Championship appearance. He held the previous record of 184-6 that he set at the Dakota Duals.

Snyder has finished in the top-10 in every meet that he has had a mark in this season and won his second straight Summit League title on May 10. He had the 12th-best throw of the final 24 in the preliminaries.

Men's head coach Dave Gottsleben's take on Snyder: "He's a special young man who is just scratching the surface. His dedication to the discus is phenomenal. He and his dad have had thousands of throws, even practicing in the snow. I think it's cool he has a chance to be an All-American, and I think Cody will have a post-collegiate career after he's done here."

Megan Glisar – Junior – High jump

Glisar, who will compete in her first NCAA Championship on Saturday in the high jump, transferred in from Morningside College where she won the NAIA Indoor Championships and placed second at the outdoors championships last season.

Glisar enters the championships after clearing 5-10 ½ at the West Region Preliminaries. She is tied for the ninth-best mark of out of the remaining 24 athletes at 6-0.

Huber's take on Glisar: "Megan's had a lot of experiences being at the NAIA National Meets and competing at that level, so I think that brings a lot of confidence. There's a lot of experience that will carry over from that."
