

KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens hires Riley to improve training curriculum

KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens has hired Dan Riley as a Marketing Associate as part of the company's ongoing strategy to elevate its international PRO Training curriculum.

Riley, who earned his bachelor's degree in political science from the University of South Dakota, has previously worked at Volkswagen AG in Germany, Target Corporation and as a program coordinator for the Great Plains International Trade Association.

His daily responsibilities include supporting the marketing department in a variety of functions, including creating marketing materials, creating PRO Training materials, and establishing additional lines of communication with the company's sales representatives and dealers.

Lisa Carson, marketing manager for KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens, said Riley's previous training experience with an international manufacturer will help him elevate the company's PRO Training curriculum to a higher standard.

"Dan's experience with Volkswagen AG gives him a deeper understanding of how an international training program should be run," Carson said. "I am very confident his skills and business acumen will make him a great addition to the KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens marketing team."

Riley said he is looking forward to enhancing the PRO Training sales and service programs, which are designed to educate dealers and customers about the effective application, operation, maintenance and troubleshooting of KPI-JCI and Astec Mobile Screens equipment.

"I am proud to be a part of a 'Made in America' company with a history of success and innovation," Riley said. "I am also excited to bring some training experience to help facilitate better manufacturer-to-seller trainings, as well as metric experience to help develop metrics in the interest of creating leaner processes."

To contact Dan Riley, e-mail him at danriley@kpijci.com or call him at (605) 668-2552.

Fight higher fuel prices with AAA's gas-saving tips

Retail gasoline prices have hit an all-time February high, according to AAA. The current South Dakota average price for a gallon of self-serve regular gasoline now stands at $3.498, up 27 cents over the last two months, making many motorists uneasy about what to expect in the coming months.

"Every driver is impacted by the increased cost of fuel" said Marilyn Buskohl, spokeswoman for AAA South Dakota. "But there are several easy things we can do to stretch each tank of gas and to find the lowest fuel prices when it's time to fill up."

• Properly inflate tires. Only 17 percent of cars have all four tires properly inflated, yet the U.S. Department of Energy reports that proper tire inflation can improve fuel economy by up to three percent.

It's important not only to check tire pressures at least once a month, but also to make sure it's done correctly. A recent survey found that 85 percent of motorists don't know how to properly check tire pressures.

It's best to check the pressures when the tires are cold and have not been driven recently. Tires should be inflated to levels recommended by the vehicle manufacturer, not the pressure levels stamped on the tire sidewall. The proper pressure levels can be found on a sticker on the driver's side door jamb or in the owner's manual.

• Be gentle on the gas and brake pedals. One of the easiest and most effective ways to conserve fuel is to change driving styles. Instead of making quick starts and sudden stops, go easy on the gas and brake pedals.

If there is a red light ahead, ease off the gas and coast up to it rather than waiting until the last second to brake. Once the light turns green, gently accelerate rather than making a quick start. The U.S. Department of Energy reports aggressive driving can lower a car's fuel economy by up to 33 percent.

total fuel bill for your particular trip based on your particular vehicle.

AAA's TripTik smartphone app provides motorists with the most current and accurate gas price data available, by drawing on credit card transactions at more than 100,000 stations nationwide. Drivers can find the lowest gas prices close to home or on the road. The AAA app's GPS technology enables users to quickly locate stations on a map and see the price for all available grades of gasoline. Visit AAA.com/Mobile.

• Drive the speed limit. slowing down to observe the speed limit is safer and can conserve fuel. The U.S. Department of Energy reports that each 5 mph driven over 60 mph is like paying an additional 24 cents per gallon for gas. Leave yourself plenty of time to reach your destination to avoid feeling rushed so you can arrive safely and with a little more fuel in the tank.

• Plan errands in advance. When running errands, try to combine multiple tasks into one trip. Several short trips starting with a cold engine each time can use twice as much gas as a longer multipurpose trip covering the same distance when the engine is warm.

Also, plan the route in advance to drive the fewest miles. Online mapping tools such as AAA's TripTik Travel Planner are available to help plan routes and are free to all motorists at AAA.com.

• Lighten the load. A heavier vehicle uses more fuel. Lighten your vehicle by cleaning out the trunk, cargo areas and passenger compartments. Also try to avoid using a car's roof rack to transport luggage or other equipment—especially over long distances on the highway. A loaded roof rack affects the vehicle aerodynamics and creates extra drag that reduces fuel economy.

• Keep up-to-date on vehicle maintenance. Keeping a car running properly helps achieve maximum fuel economy. Be sure to follow the vehicle manufacturer's recommended maintenance schedule, and do not ignore vehicle warning lights that indicate something is wrong. Warning lights can signal problems that will greatly decrease a car's fuel efficiency. Check and replace air filters. Clogged filters can cause up to a 10-percent increase in fuel consumption.

State shines in 'Over South Dakota'

The wonders of South Dakota are on display in a new high-definition television documentary from South Dakota Public Broadcasting.

"Over South Dakota," an aerial tour, reveals our state's beauty, majesty and splendor. The one-hour SDPB Television production premieres on Sunday, March 4, at 6:30 p.m. with an immediate encore at 8 p.m.

The breathtaking high-definition production takes viewers on a bird's-eye journey from the cities to the plains to the mountains.

The production begins with poetic words from Patrick Hicks, writer in residence at Augustana College in Sioux Falls, and ends with words from Badger Clark, the late cowboy poet who was the state's first poet laureate. In between, the production soars over a dozen areas of the state, giving viewers a unique and powerful perspective of our home. South Dakota singer/songwriter Boyd Bristow narrates.

The incredible vistas were filmed during the summer of 2011 by SkyWorks, an internationally-acclaimed production organization, in partnership with SDPB. The project is supported by the South Dakota Departments of Tourism and Game, Fish and Parks, who will use portions of the footage for their own promotion efforts.

A new aerial tour of the state long has been one of the network's goals. "For some time, we've hoped to reprise 'Soaring South Dakota' with high definition video technology," said Larry Rohrer, director of content for the multi-media SDPB network.

SESQUICENTENNIAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Cleo Erickson

Excerpts from the Plain Talk

1972

The Coyotes have dominated the NCC Tourney and the Tanagers triumph in the Holiday Invitational.

The City Council opened bids for a new civil defense fire siren. The low bid of $1,900.00 was awarded to Learn Communication of America, Inc. At the same meeting, new salaries were set for the City Manager at $13,500.00 and for the City Engineer at $13,926.00.

The Senior Citizen Center at 214 East Main was a busy place on New Year's Eve. Fifty five citizens saw the New Year in with a pinochle and pitch party. Oyster stew and all the trimmings were served at the close of the evening by Vera and Harlan Emerson.

The Clay County Historical Society historical column will make its appearance in this issue of the Plain Talk on Feb. 10, 1972. The initial columns will be taken from the files of the Dakota Republican in 1882. On February 9, 1982 it reads as follows: "The building boom still continues".

The City Council voted to double the sewer service charge for Vermillion. The increase would amount to about 80 cents per month for a single family. The estimated annual income for the city would be between 38,000 and 40,000 annually.

Meals on Wheels — dinner's ready — chicken today! And another hot meal is delivered by the Meals on Wheels program initiated by the Vermillion Civic Council in July of 1968.

The new Middle School opened in February of 1972.

In the special election held in Vermillion, 1,128 votes were cast, with 714 voting yes to keep the City Manager Form of Government and 414 voting no.

From the Dakota Republican, Feb. 16, 1882, reprinted in the Plain Talk here are some interesting facts:

"Meckling is getting to be the liveliest part of the County. Blanchard furnishes the fun for the burg."

"Hogs are not worth anything; don't bring them in, you can only get 6 cents for them on foot."

"Burbank is flourishing. Mr. Spencer has been offered $7.00 per acre for some of his land there, but he "can't see it".

The parking meters in January of 1972 took in $1,038.

The April 1882 Plain Talk reports the news that the notorious Jesse James, who has been engaged in a majority of trail robberies for a good many years, was killed in St. Joseph, Missouri last Monday. If this proves true a noted desperado has been put out of the way of doing more harm and the express men will breathe easier. Now the Ford brothers, who killed Jesse James, have been threatened with the vendetta by the banditti of Missouri and Tennessee.

On April 21, 1972 a fire call came in at 2:30 a.m. saying the Co-Ed Theatre was on fire. It was almost completely destroyed.

The City Council approved a rate increase for a family membership to the swimming pool. The new fee will be $15.00 per family. The child fee of $5.00 and the adult fee of $9.00 will remain the same.

"The Day's Gone By" column of May 4, 1882 tells us that the calaboose is anchored near the court house. Some of the young professional gentlemen around town are trying to start a reading club.

A flatboat, on the Missouri River near Frank Verzanies, performs all the duties of a ferry boat. Captain Tom Ryan is Master of the craft.

There is one point which our Scandinavian friends should bear in mind relative to their schools, and that is to have a teacher who can speak properly the English language".

In 1972, the average hotel employs one person for every six guests.

The Vermillion Chamber of commerce will hold an Antique Flea Market on Saturday, June 10, 1072. The market will open at 9:00 am on Main Street and close at 5:30 pm. Call the Chamber office to reserve a spot.

Band director Jim Johnson announced today plans of organizing a municipal band in Vermillion for the summer.

From the "Day's Gone By" column it states that in June of 1907, Vermillion will be compelled to pass through another summer without a circus. Flaming posters are adorning the walls of towns all about us, but evidently Vermillion has been passed by.
