problems, but they were able to go in today.”

Divers could encounter everything from tree limbs to re-bar when they enter the river’s channel.

“There’s things from 20 or 30 years ago – when you look this area, and how there’s been construction here, there could be just about anything in this water,” Sideras said. “The other thing we’re working with is the stress factor for our firefighters and our law enforcement officers. They’ve been down here for nearly 24 hours, and we’re expecting another 12 hours. We’ve been moving and rotating crews out so that we can make sure they don’t get overstressed, and that they remain healthy with low temperatures and don’t experience hypothermia.”

The Vermillion School District brought together guidance counselors and outside resources March 14 to meet with students grieving the drowning death of their classmate.

Madison Wallace was a sophomore at Vermillion High School, Superintendent Mark Froke said.

Her younger brother, Garrett, 6, attends kindergarten in Vermillion.

Froke said the school district’s crisis team, made up of administrators and guidance counselors, met early March 14 and assembled resources to meet with students.

“Even though this is quite a sad and shocking situation for everyone at the school, we’re trying to maintain a normal school day and be respectful and help all of those who need assistance with their grieving,” Froke told the Sioux Falls Argus Leader.

A fund has been set up for the Wallace family at Wells Fargo banks, in care of the Madison Wallace Family Fund. You can also donate online at <http://www.madisonwallacefund.com/index.html>.

Garrett Wallace was reportedly climbing on rocks Thursday evening when he fell into the frothing water, Sideras said.

Witness accounts differ on whether someone pushed the boy out of the water or he popped up on a rock before being pulled ashore. Emergency workers carried the boy away from the river wrapped in a blanket and he was not injured, he said.

“He wasn’t in that long,” Sideras said.

Napoleon Ducheneaux, 21, said his friend fell into the river while trying to help the boy and his sister. He was holding onto the woman and boy by their hands before his hands began sliding, then he just “slipped and disappeared,” Ducheneaux told

The Associated Press late Thursday.

“These people literally jumped in without thinking of their own safety and trying to rescue that child,” he said. “It’s a very noble act that they did, and they probably contributed to saving that boy’s life.”

Sioux Falls is named after the river’s cascading waterfalls in the park, which is a popular spot in the summer and spring. For the first time in months, the temperature rose to around 50 degrees in Sioux Falls on March 14.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Bridge work to begin on Hwy. 50

Work to repair and repaint bridges in Clay County is scheduled to begin next week, according to the South Dakota Department of Transportation.

Industrial Builders, Inc. of Fargo, ND, will begin work on the SD Highway 50 bridges west of Vermillion on Monday, March 25, and traffic will be reduced to one-lane in each direction.

Beginning in June, work will begin on the Highway 50 bridge east of Vermillion. East-bound traffic will be detoured off Highway 50 onto Crawford Road and back onto Highway 50. That phase of the work is expected to continue for about three months.

Other projects included in the $4.1 million contract include work on Highway 19 one-mile north of Vermillion at the Vermillion River Bridge, as well as several overhead and mainline structures on Interstate 29 in Deuel, Hamlin, Lincoln and Union counties.

Work on the I-29 structures is scheduled to begin in April.

Motorists should expect delays, suddenly slowing traffic, construction equipment and workers; drivers may want to consider alternate routes until the work is finished.

All of the construction is scheduled to be done by Oct. 1.
