

U. football to take on Oregon in 2014

University of South Dakota football will open its 2014 season against University of Oregon on Aug. 30 at Autzen Stadium in Eugene, OR. The Ducks are a part of the Coyotes' non-conference schedule, which includes a trip to Montana (Sept. 13) and a home game against North Dakota (Sept. 20).

"This is an opportunity for our team to see one of the top programs in the United States and play in one of the nation's best facilities," said USD head coach Joe Glenn. "It will be an experience that our players will be able to share with their children and grandchildren. Financially, it helps out our department and helps make ends meet."

Oregon will be the seventh FBS opponent for the Coyotes in five seasons and first from the Pac-12 Conference. South Dakota is taking on Kansas this season on Sept. 7. The Coyotes' signature win against an FBS opponent was a 41-38 victory against Minnesota in 2010.

SDNG to host exercise

The South Dakota National Guard will host its 29th annual Golden Coyote training exercise in the Black Hills June 8-22 to provide military units with relevant training opportunities in support of overseas contingency operations and homeland defense.

Created in the mid 1980s by the South Dakota National Guard, with the cooperation of the National Forest Service and Custer State Park, this year's Golden Coyote training exercise will allow more than 3,500 service members to conduct combat support and combat service support missions in a realistic training environment and provide valuable services to the public.

There will be 55 military units representing 11 states and four foreign nations participating in the exercise and from multiple branches of military service - Army, Navy and Air Force - working together to create an invaluable training experience. Participating units train on their equipment and employ tactics, as well as complete various engineer projects that help improve the forest and infrastructure of many local communities.

Local residents receive numerous benefits of the many engineering projects being conducted during the training exercise. Units transport timber cut in remote areas to those who can use it as firewood, identify hazardous wilderness areas and make them safe for public use, and re-surface local roadways that have fallen into disrepair.

In addition, individual units are able to participate in numerous warrior training tasks and battle drills, such as urban combat operations, land navigation, first aid, casualty evacuation, and day and night convoy operations. This provides a valuable opportunity for units to train on skills needed for any future overseas deployment.

Missions for the 2013 Golden Coyote training exercise are conducted throughout the Black Hills and the surrounding area, both in local urban areas and remote wilderness sites.

SD highways fatality-free during Memorial Day

For the third time in the last four Memorial Day holidays, South Dakota has ended the official reporting period without a highway fatality.

Late reports from the past weekend could change this year's outcome, but as of mid-afternoon on Tuesday, May 28, the Office of Highway Safety had received no reports of fatal crashes on state roads during the holiday reporting period.

"That's a great way to start the busy summer travel season," said Col. Craig Price, superintendent of the South Dakota Highway Patrol. "The Highway Patrol had all available troopers out for a high-visibility saturation patrol on Memorial Day, and we used the holiday weekend to kick off a summer-long safety campaign we call 'Obey the Sign and Avoid the Fine.'"

The campaign is an initiative to reduce highway crashes and increase safety on South Dakota's roadways. Statistics show that speeding, impaired driving and other hazardous moving violations are major contributors in crashes, injuries and deaths on the highways. The summer-long campaign will target speed and alcohol in particular for enforcement efforts.

In addition to enforcement, the summer safety campaign will use social media for public education and will partner with the State Department of Transportation for permanent and portable message boards with safe-driving messages on the interstates and other high-traffic areas in South Dakota.

The Memorial Day travel period was fatality-free in 2010 and 2011, Office of Highway Safety records show. A traffic crash killed one person during the 2012 Memorial Day reporting period.

Lots filled with dandelions have become a common sight in Vermillion over the past few weeks, following a period of increased rain and warmer temperatures. In some spots, such as this one near Wal-Mart, it can be difficult to determine where the dandelions begin and the grass ends. (Photo by Travis Gulbrandson)
