John Morrell penalized for wastewater violations

Officials from the South Dakota Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) announced today the department has reached a settlement with John Morrell & Company, Inc., in Sioux Falls for surface water discharge permit violations. The enforcement action issued by DENR resulted in $44,079 in penalties assessed for wastewater discharges into the Big Sioux River since 2009; in addition, the meatpacking company also has agreed to improve its wastewater treatment practices. John Morrell's wastewater violations stemmed from three incidents at the plant. The first resulted from a disinfectant John Morrell used in its cleaning processes. The disinfectant affected the treatment process at the treatment plant, resulting in effluent violations. The second plant, disrupting the biological activity at the plant interrupting the wastewater treatment process. The final incident relates to maintenance at the treatment plant. John Morrell responded to and corrected each of these violations. As a result of DENR's enforcement action, John Morrell will make additional proactive upgrades to ensure future violations are prevented. "The notice of violation and compliance agreement requires John Morrell to complete a full evaluation of its wastewater and treatment systems," said DENR Secretary Steve Pirner. "John Morrell came forward with a proactive plan to address the violations, and we are pleased with the cooperation we have received from the company." Morrell has hired a professional engineer to evaluate its wastewater treatment systems. Improvement plans and completion of the upgrades must be approved by DENR. All environmental penalties are deposited in the state's Regulated Substance Response Fund which is used to respond to environmental emergencies.

incident resulted from another upset at the treatment plant. Due to severe winter weather early in 2010, John Morrell had difficulty disposing of wastes normally hauled off the site for disposal. These wastes were instead sent to the treatment

All Women Count! has screened more than 19,000 South Dakota women

October's Breast Cancer Awareness Month marks a milestone for All Women Count!, the state's breast and cervical cancer program. The program has screened 19,069 women in its 14 years, diagnosing 221 cases of breast cancer.

"The success of All Women Count would not be possible without the 300 screening sites and 950 providers across the state that enroll and screen the women," said Norma Schmidt, Cancer Program Director for the Department of Health. "Partners such as the American Cancer Society, Women's Cancer Network, Susan G. Komen Foundation, Wellmark Foundation and John T. Vucurevich Cancer Care Institute have also been instrumental in promoting screening and early detection."

All Women Count! provides mammograms and Pap smears to women who are income and age eligible. Eligible women age 40 to 64 can receive a mammogram and women 30 to 64 a Pap smear. A mammogram is a safe, low-dose X-ray of the breast that detects breast cancer in its earliest, more treatable stages. A Pap smear is a screening test that detects cervical cancer in its early stages. The program also provides cholesterol and blood pressure screens for heart disease and glucose screens for diabetes.

Excluding cancers of the skin, breast cancer is the most common cancer diagnosed in South Dakota women and the second leading cause of cancer death. In 2011, the American Cancer Society expects 540 new invasive breast cancers to be diagnosed and 100 deaths due to this disease in South Dakota. However, early detection can save lives and increase treatment options. Women can reduce their risk of Gender is one of the major risk factors for developing breast cancer. Aside from being female, age is the most important factor affecting breast cancer risk. The older a women gets the higher her risk of developing breast cancer. This is why it is important that older women continue to monitor their health and see their doctor for routine screenings.

To find out if you are eligible for the All Women Count! Program, call the local community health services office, your health care provider, or the Department of Health toll free at 1-800-738-2301 or see the web at www.getscreenedsd.gov.
