AARP offers free defensive driving course to S.D. veterans

AARP is offering free classroom defensive driving courses in South Dakota and across the country to recognize veterans as well as current military personnel for their service during the month of November. Military personnel of all ages and spouses with military identification are eligible to take AARP's Driver Safety Program free of charge throughout the month. The course normally costs $14 for nonmembers and $12 for members.

Whether you're active duty, retired, guard, or reserve – you're eligible for this free, four-hour course which provides tips on driving safely. From how to minimize the effects of dangerous blind spots to maintaining the proper following distance behind another car – our instructors will help you remember the rules of the road so that you can drive more confidently.

With classes offered in a number of communities throughout South Dakota, non-active duty veterans should have little difficulty finding a class that's conveniently located. Classes are limited in size, however, so those interested should call early to find a class that fits their needs.

Once you sign up, all you need to remember is to bring your valid military identification to the classroom. We'll accept military ID, discharge papers (DD Form 214), American Legion cards, dependent ID cards or Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) cards.

All participating veterans will be asked to complete a Veteran Participation Form as part of the course, which will be provided on site by the instructor.

To locate a Driver Safety course near you, visit www.aarp.org/veterans or call 1-888-227-7669 (AARP NOW).

Alpha Xi Delta plans chili cook-off for Nov. 3

The women of Alpha Xi Delta at the University of South Dakota will be holding their annual philanthropy event, a chili cook-off, on Thursday Nov. 3.

The event will include a chili feed and cook-off. The women of Alpha Xi Delta will be making chili for people attending the event, while a few local businesses will compete in a cook-off for a grand prize.

The proceeds from the event will go towards their national philanthropy, Autism Speaks. Autism Speaks is dedicated to funding research for the prevention, treatment and cure for autism. Autism Speaks also increases awareness for autism.

Come out and support a local organization in their efforts to contribute to a philanthropy that is close to their hearts.

If you have any questions you may contact Shelby Wessling, the philanthropy chair, at (712) 880-2040 or Payton Randle, the assistant philanthropy chair, at (605) 553-8339.

■ PANTRY

Berglin said.

The criteria by which an individual or family can accept food from the pantry is based on their income. The current requirement is that the household earn at a maximum rate of 185 percent of the poverty level.

That means a household of one would have to earn a maximum of $386 per week and a household of two would earn $519.

All kinds of people utilize the service that the food pantry provides, Berglin said.

"I have single-parent moms, I have single-parent dads, I have two-parent households with kids, I have seniors," she said.

Food pantry users are allowed to get food only once per month.

"Because we are a private food pantry, we cannot have people coming back every week," Berglin said.

Donations, of course, enable users to come back at all. Without them, Berglin said, "We would have to close our doors."

The Vermillion Food Pantry receives donations from a variety of sources, from individuals to groups to local businesses.

Two businesses that provide food are Godfather's Pizza and Pizza Hut, which donate unused pies from their daily lunch buffets, which are then frozen by the pantry for later use.

Jones' Food Center, Hy-Vee and Wal-Mart also provide a variety of foods and products, including bread, produce, meat and paper towels.

"They donate whatever they have that's getting too old (to stay on the shelves), but once you freeze it, it's going to be fine," Berglin said.

Beginning this spring, Wal-Mart has provided much of the meat the pantry receives.

"That was our biggest expense through the last five years," Berglin said. "So this has freed us up to buy detergent, cereal and canned goods."

A number of donation drives are held each year, as well, including a mail drive over Mother's Day/graduation weekend, a drive by Wal-Mart that takes place in September and Coyoteopoly in November.

The Coyoteopoly students also provided Berglin with an orange ribbon to wear, which promotes hunger awareness.

"The kids at USD who are doing Coyoteopoly are making them, and they're going to sell them at the Hunger Forum, which is coming up on Nov. 9, and probably other places on campus," Berglin said. "It's just to remind people in Vermillion that we are in a crunch."

Despite the higher number of users, however, Berglin said the pantry is "blessed" by the people and businesses who
