Time for influenza vaccination

Although it's only September, influenza has been detected in South Dakota, prompting a state health official to urge universal vaccination.

"We have already reported four confirmed cases of influenza, all children," said Dr. Lon Kightlinger, state epidemiologist for the department. "Fortunately the vaccine is readily available this year and now is a good time to be vaccinated."

Kightlinger noted that 51.1 percent of South Dakotans over the age of 6 months were vaccinated against the flu during the 2011-2012 season, the highest rate in the nation.

Annual flu vaccination is recommended for everyone, but some groups are at higher risk for complications - pregnant women, people over 50 years and people with chronic medical conditions. Health-care workers and household contacts of high risk populations such as those with young infants in the household should especially be vaccinated.

Kightlinger encouraged parents to take advantage of the free flu vaccine the state offers for kids from six months to 18 years. Kids account for a significant number of flu cases and hospitalizations each year and also help spread the illness in the community. Vaccinating children protects them and the people around them.

South Dakotans can also prevent the spread of the flu by practicing the common sense measures of the department's "Stopping the flu starts with you" campaign:

The site remains fenced off until work commences, Abbott said.

One committee member alluded to the lengthy delays in building the current MUC. Because of the delays, some USD students never had the usage of a full student union during four years on the Vermillion campus.

Despite the delays, Wagner expressed optimism at beginning construction immediately should the full Board of Regents approve the project next week. The issue would likely be considered at an Oct. 10 session, the regents said.

"We would like to start digging ground this next week, if (the regents) approve this," Wagner said.

Construction crews could still make important progress on footings and underground utility work beginning in October, one party noted during Monday's call. During the call, Abbott was asked whether current litigation involving the MUC expansion would tie up the project. A Massachusetts architecture firm has sued a Sioux Falls firm, charging its copyrighted designs were used by the Sioux Falls firm for the USD project.

Abbott said he hadn't had the opportunity to talk with counsel before Monday's committee meeting. He was also reluctant to discuss legal matters during a telephonic call with media participants.

However, he expressed optimism in moving forward with the MUC expansion despite any outstanding legal issues.

USD officials were also asked efforts to bring additional franchises to campus.

Sheila Gestring, the university's vice president for finance, said the initial effort has focused on three major franchises.

"We are talking with Aramark about bringing in Qdoba and Einstein bagels. For the most part, we are having some initial conversations with Chick-fil-A," she said. "Those three (franchises) are the ones that students have chosen."

Mentoring available

The Clay-Union Foundation is seeking new members in their mentoring program, and invites both adults and youth age 5-17 to join their organization.

An adult male volunteer in Vermillion would like to mentor a youth age 10-14 years old, and spend time with him. A 16-year-old girl is also seeking an adult female mentor. The process is easy, and there is no cost to join the program. Group activities are covered by the foundation.

Mentors are also needed in Elk Point and Jefferson, SD. Mentoring pays huge benefits for both the youth and adults, Applications for both youth and adults are at http://www.clay-unionfoundation.org/. The volunteers are all background checked, and interviewed before the match, and are asked to spend two hour per week with space. "Our intent is to have as much glass as possible for the facility," Wagner said. Abbott emphasized the university is not renovating the commons dining hall. "It would take nearly $7 million to renovate it, and it made no sense to us, no sense whatever," he said.

At the conclusion of Monday's committee meeting, the project received a unanimous go-ahead from Hansen, Abbott, State Engineer Kristi Honeywell and Board of Regents executive director Jack Warner.

However, USD officials were warned they can expect questions about the project during next week's regents meeting in Vermillion. USD officials should be ready to defend the project.

"(The regents) will raise concerns about the budget, so you need to be prepared," one party advised on the call.
