USD Lecture Series Speakers

VERMILLION, S.D. – The fall lecture series hosted by the University of South Dakota's College of Arts & Sciences will feature speakers from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Commerce, the Sioux Falls banking industry, a businessman and a history professor.

The four Farber Forums and the 64th Annual Harrington Lecture will take place in Old Main's Farber Hall over the next few months. Hosting speakers from within the university and beyond, all five lectures are free and open to the public. Each Farber Series lecture begins at 4 p.m. on its respective date, and the Harrington Lecture begins at 7 p.m.

The Farber speakers: •Christine Cagle, the CDC's associate director for policy, planning and communications in the division for HIV/AIDS prevention, will present "The New Era of HIV Prevention in a Dynamic Health Care Field" on Sept. 16.

•Douglas J. Hajek, a 1985 USD School of Law graduate, will deliver "When Citibank Came to South Dakota: The economics, personalities and politics behind the move" on Sept. 22. The banking lawyer is currently partnered with the Davenport Evans firm in Sioux Falls.

•Stephen B. Hall will lecture Oct. 8 on "International Job Opportunities: 10 Secrets of Getting that Overseas Job." Before his employment with the Bureau of Industry and Security in the U.S. Department of Commerce, Hall attended both Vermillion High School and USD (1974).

•Fred Winkler will present "Are College Students Still Designed for Slow in a World Gone Fast?" on Oct. 21. The 1966 USD School of Law graduate is president and CEO of Dakota Investments and COO for CitiGroup (formerly AT&T) Universal Card Services.

Finally, on Oct. 28, USD history professor Clayton Lehmann will deliver the 64th Annual Harrington Lecture. He received his doctorate degree in history from the University of Chicago and plans to speak on "Imagining Greece." Much of his teaching and research have focused on Greek and Roman history, archaeology and epigraphy. The honor delivering this lecture is chosen each year based on recommendations from a faculty committee in Arts & Sciences.

What Other Choice Than The Iran Deal?

BY BOB MERCER
STATE CAPITOL BUREAU

PIERRE – No one seems to recall that the United State of America – our nation – joined with Israel to secretly attack Iran less than 10 years ago.

Congress wasn't asked by President George W. Bush or by President Barack Obama to declare war.

Instead the Republican president covertly initiated and the Democratic president who came next covertly carried forward a national strategy of cyber-attack on Iran's nuclear facilities.

Spies planted a virus in Iran's computers that controlled centrifuges making nuclear material.

The virus known as Stuxnet caused equipment to go haywire.

The secret war worked, for a while.

Then the virus got into general circulation in the world. Technology attracts people with big brains. They figured out Stuxnet.

And then the story got out, largely through The New York Times and other U.S. news outlets such as Wired magazine and The Washington Post and National Public Radio.

In that respect, the nuclear-control agreement negotiated by the Obama administration with Iranian leaders in recent months could be called a peace treaty.

Critics of the deal, including our state's three members of Congress, argue that Iran might find ways to avoid neutral inspections.

President Obama barely avoided rejection of the deal on Thursday by the U.S. Senate.

A majority of 58 senators, including South Dakota's two Republicans and four Democrats, lined up against the deal.

They needed 60 to cut off debate. The 42 who stood with the president were Democrats.

That vote came Thursday, Sept. 10 – the eve of the fourteenth anniversary of the 9/11 hijackings of jets flown into the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. The fourth airliner presumably targeted the White House before it went down in Pennsylvania.

We have beefed up U.S. security and intelligence gathering since 2001. Iran likely has strengthened its security too since the Stuxnet attacks five years ago.

The United States has been in a four-front war in the Middle East since at least 1979 when Iran took 52 Americans as hostages for 444 days.

We have battled covertly with Iran, we have invaded Iraq and Afghanistan, and we have pressed into Pakistan at times.

We finally caught and killed Osama bin Laden, the architect of the 9/11 attacks and of Al Qaeda's war on the U.S., when President Obama sent two helicopters into Pakistan on May 2, 2011.

Now a new form of barbarism rises with ISIS rolling through much of Syria and parts of northern Iraq. We are offering assistance but not much more.

We have tried the military solution in Iraq and Afghanistan. We have the federal debt to prove our ambition exceeded our ability to pay in money and exceeded our tolerance in lives lost and ruined.

We have tried the cyber-espionage route in Iraq. We have tried diplomacy and money in Pakistan.

Now President Obama wants to try peace, of sorts, with Iran. So do Britain, France, Russia, China, Germany and other European Union nations.

To kill the treaty begs the question: What instead shall we do?

There is no sound sadder than the bugle of Taps at a veteran's funeral. Except when that bugle is blown in vain.

South Dakota A Happy Place

HURON, S.D. — Three percent of South Dakotans want to "head for the border," according to a poll conducted by South Dakota Magazine during a 30th anniversary "Fair Tour" in August and September, but most of the respondents are tickled to be living here.

The magazine's Yankton staff conducted the "Happiness Poll" at the Turner County Fair in Parker, Central States Fair in Rapid City and the State Fair in Huron, which just concluded.

Ashley Wagner, the magazine's circulation director and unofficial poll statistician, said there were no statistical differences between the three sites. "Everywhere we went, we found that except for a few soreheads people are pretty happy with their lives in South Dakota."

Here is the exact polling data from the lone question, which was "How Do You Rate Life in South Dakota."

— 44% marked "paradise"

— 47% said it's "plenty good"

— 6% voted for "satisfactory"

— 3% said "where's the border, I'm leaving."

Katie Hunhoff, the magazine's editor, said the "Happiness Poll" might become an annual event. "Ninety-one percent said life is plenty good or paradise. We think it might be interesting to see if that number goes up or down in the years ahead."

"There's also a valid question of whether fair-goers are happier than people who don't eat SDSU ice cream and pork sandwiches," she said, "but the people we talked to seemed like a good cross-section of South Dakotans — except that country music fans might be over-represented. Our state fair booth was right next to Sherwin Linton's stage."

She said the poll also might be tainted by the philosophy of one respondent who said, "It's paradise but let's not tell anybody."
